File in Ryan

December 23, 1932.

Mr. Joseph S. Carroll, Asst. Prof.
of Electrical Engineering,
Stanford University,
Stanford University, Calif.

Dear Joe:

In our biographical files I find a startling paucity of information concerning some of the more prominent members of the Institute. In this connection I am writing to ask your assistance to the extent of sending to me at some convenient early date biographical information concerning Dr. Harris J. Ryan, as comprehensive and complete as possible. Also, I would like a copy of the most recent photograph available.

Realizing that this simple request involves a far from simple response on your part, I will appreciate whatever you can do for me.

With season's greetings and cordial best wishes, I am

Yours sincerely,

G. Ross Henninger,
Associate Editor.

Dear Ross:

I received your letter concerning Dr. Ryan's biography several days ago. However, due to the holidays, I haven't had a chance to keep up on my correspondence.

Within the next few days I will be getting in touch with Dr. Ryan to get the information you would like. I will attempt to get more information than you need, and will leave it up to you to arrange it and boil
it down.

Very truly yours,

Dear Mr. Henninger:

Dr. Ryan's biography has been somewhat delayed on account of a rush that the City of Los Angeles got in for some corona loss measurements. These measurements are to be made on a special type of cable and they wanted the results as soon as possible. We had to drop most everything here and put in all the spare time we had changing over a set-up we had here.

The first chance I have, I will get the information organized that I have and mail it to you.

Yours truly,
